A. Background and Definitions

As a post-secondary institution, Niagara College first made sustainability a key strategic priority in 2009 and has identified the importance of reducing impacts on the environment. Niagara College has adopted the definition of sustainability based on the Brundtland Commission report, created by the United Nations (UN) in 1987, Report of the World Commission on Environment and Development: Our Common Future. In this report, the following definition is provided: “Sustainable development is development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs.”

The Sustainability Committee was formed in 2011, with representation from academics, operations, student services, the Student Administrative Council, the student body, and other employees to drive initiatives that focused on improving campus sustainability. Since then, the Office of Sustainability was formed in January 2015 with the intention to continue and develop initiatives on campus and in the community.
